

Dear FCC Commissioners & Staff:

Write your letter here.

My name is Larry Mudd. I live in Louisville, KY, and currently receive Internet services through IgLou, a locally-based ISP. I would not be in favor of regulations that limited DSL provision to a small group of large phone companies or other monopolies. It is important to me to support local companies and I would much prefer giving my business to a local provider rather than some large national company. The American Way is to support competition to give consumers the widest array of choices. Give the little guy a fair chance to compete.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Larry P. Mudd
